

UNIT TESTING

It is a testing method which individual units of source code. These test are written by developers

The unit could be entire module in this project we going to test complete programme, whether it's working or not. We checking whether the code is asking type of consume and when the type of consumption Specified it will should flow on diff ways

And the electricity bill are calculated depend on type of code the developer will make test case for that the fare will be different for different type of consuming.